Virtual Unknown Wins Race

By Bob Stratton

Times Staff Writer

Mark Embler, a virtual unknown in running circles, outdueled one of the Southeast's most renowned runners, Lee Fidler, over the final 1.2 miles Monday to win the fourth annual Labor Day Road Race.

Embler, a 23-year-old runner from Columbia, S.C., was shoulder-to-shoulder with Fidler from the start of the 10,000 meter race. However, he moved out to take a 20-yard lead in the fourth mile and maintained the advantage to the finish line despite taking a wrong turn off First Street.

Embler, whose winning time of 30:26 equaled the course record set by Herb Wills last year, turned right on Mulberry Street rather than continuing straight and then turning right on Walnut Street to Central City Park. The mix-up kept him from a course-record time.

but Embler was more concerned with the victory.

"The wrong turn hurt me time-wise, but it doesn't take anything away from winning," said Embler. "I've been winning local races, but this is the first big win for me. I've always been afraid of Lee also, but I was able to pull away from him today. I'm just really pleased."

A total of 1,152 runners, the largest field ever, participated in the road race, sponsored by the Macon Telegraph and News. Of the total registered runners, 1,060 finished the race.

the first two-time champion of the race (he won in 1977), finished second with a time of 30:35. Bruce Skiles of Phenix City, Ala., was third at 30:39. Gary Slayton of Tallahassee, Fla., who won the 1978 race, finished fourth with 30:48.

WHILE THE MEN'S course record was equaled, Shirley Silsby shattered the women's course record with a blistering time of 34:43 to take first in the women's division.

"It was a good race for me, a personal record," said the 22-year-old Rome, Ga., native who entered the race with a best time of 35:38. "I just loved the course; the first part was no problem. And then the second part, the downhill, I knew I was running for the record and didn't want to hold back. I didn't hurt at the end but I just couldn't get myself moving any faster."

Silsby, a Racing South team member, finished well ahead of second place Alisa Adamson of Atlanta (35:55). Anne Wright of Macon was third-fastest woman with a time of 37:29.

But while the women's division went uncontested for the most part, the men's open division was quite competitive with Embler, Fidler, Skiles, Slayton and George West (who finished 16th) entering the race with best-times of less than 31 minutes.

The top five seeds, along with Jimmy Futch of Athens, the sixth seed with an entry time of 31:10, were grouped through the first mile in a time of 4:56. Both West and Slayton fell back at the second mile mark, which the leaders passed in a time of 9:45.

IN THE THIRD mile, Futch and Skiles, who finished first in a 5,000 meter race Saturday night, faded as Embler and Fidler kept up the rapid pace, passing the three mile mark in 14:41. Stride for stride, Embler and Fidler finished the third mile in five minutes with Embler moving out in front by 10 seconds on the downhill to the five mile mark.

Embler continued pulling away from Fidler before making the wrong turn. Correcting himself, Embler was caught by Fidler but quickly regained his lead before entering Central City Park.

"I was running as fast as I could when he made his move so I just couldn't go out after him," said Fidler, who has had several calf injuries this summer. "I don't like to lose but it is some consolation that this is the fastest time I've run this year. The wrong turn took me up. I thought I had a chance, but he recovered real well and there was nothing I could do."

"It was a good, grueling pace. I tried to keep the pressure on him. Once he knew he could run faster and make the distance he just took off and left me."

With the victory, Embler takes the lead in the '80-81 Southeast Grand Prix title chase and will no longer be unknown.

"Winning is great but it means you have people training harder to beat you," said Embler. "That's something I'll have to deal with later though. Right now, I'm going to enjoy this."
