Macon's Race Completed In Record Time

Kevin Moats of the Atlanta Track Club took full advantage of the coolest weather at starting time in the history of the Macon Labor Day Race to win Monday's race in a record time of 29:46.

An unseasonably cool temperature of 63 degrees with an 82 percent humidity greeted the 1275 runners for the sixth annual Macon Labor Day Road Race. Moats led a strong field of seeded runners to win in a time almost 14 full seconds faster than the course record time of 29:59.7 set last year by Herb Wills of Tallahassee, Fla.

The first female finisher was Gina Procaccio of Aston, Penn., in 35:58.

Moats, a 27-year-old marathon specialist who was the captain of his cross-country team at Yale University from 1972 to 1976, allowed Noel Shumann of Tallahassee, Fla., to set the pace through the first five miles. In the last 1.2 miles of the 10,000-meter (6.2-miles) race Moats and Shumann dueled furiously until the final approach to the finish line in Central City Park.

At the finish, Moats was about 25 yards in front of Shumann and headed for a new course record.

Shumann was second to Moats in a time of 29:59. That was also faster than the course record.

Wes Wessely of Atlanta was third in 30:29.

When the race began, Shumann took an early lead at the half-mile mark as the runners approached the first major hill on Vineville Avenue.

The order of the runners with Shumann in first place, Moats close behind in second and Wessely in third developed, and the order of the runners remained that way for more than two-thirds of the race.

Shumann was running smoothly as he led the runners past the one mile mark at 5:03.

Shumann maintained his lead going downhill past the two-mile mark in 9:46, and he opened a 20-yard lead as he crossed the 3-mile point at Florida Ave. in 14:35.

Shumann and Moats surged back and forth to vary the distance between them from 3 miles to the 4-mile point at the top of the bridge overpass of the Interstate Highway with Shumann crossing the 4-mile mark in 19:30.

Coming down the hill and over the bridge, Moats closed to within five yards behind Shumann.

Just before the 5-mile five point in the race, Shumann looked over his shoulder at Moats, who was fast approaching as the two runners cleared the last major hill at College Street about 24 minutes into the race.

Moats made his bid to catch Shumann at Cotton Avenue and Daisy Park.

Coming down Cotton Avenue the runners were neck-and-neck until the turn at Second Avenue. At this time Moats took the lead for good and held off Shumann with a strong kick into Central City Park entrance. At the park he was racing the clock for the new record.

The record was his in the first Macon Labor Day Road Race he had ever run.

"My strategy was to go out slow and reel in the runners in front of me," Moats said. "I did not want to charge the first hill hard because I felt anyone who went out hard to take the lead early would suffer an oxygen debt they would have to carry with them the rest of the race."

Moats, who was 60th overall in this year's Peachtree Road Race and 81st in the 1981 New York Marathon, felt the race was won the last half-mile.

"I made up a lot of time on Noel between four and five miles and caught him at five miles," Moats said, "but the key part of the race was just past Seventh Avenue where I knew he was spent."

Moats was a two-miler at Yale in addition to running cross-country and the winning time he had in the Macon Labor Day Race was his fastest ever at 10,000-meters. His previous best time was 30:22.

Procaccio, the women's winner, was running her third 10,000-meter road race, and it was her first win at the distance. A member of the University of Florida women's track team, Procaccio was a Pennsylvania high school state champion at 800 meters.

"People all along the course told me I was the first woman and I was running the best I could," Procaccio said. "I am just happy to win here in Macon. I enjoyed the race."

Procaccio was one of several women runners from the University of Florida. Women Gators track coach Gordon Thompson said, "I brought the women up here to Macon because it is a major course with over 1,000 entrants and it is run over a decent course. It's a good way to see what kind of shape the women are in."

The second place finisher for women was Donna Miller of Tallahassee in 37:57. Sally Thomas of Gainesville was third in 38:25.

The first Macon runner to cross the finish line was Adam Pinkston, the eighth overall finisher in 31:33.

"That is a personal best for me, and the first time I have ever broken 32 minutes," Pinkston said. "I will be running my first cross-country race in college at the end of the month in Vermont, and this was a good tune-up. I have always liked the Labor Day race course."

Mike Murphy was Macon's second runner to finish with a time of 32:08. The next local runner was Tom Harrell of Warner Robins in 33:05.

The wheelchair division of the race had three entrants.

Jimmy Green of Snellville was first in 34:40, Phillip Mann of Macon was second in 37 minutes and Mike Stovall of Lawrenceville was third in 37:20.

The team division winners were: Pinkston, Harrell and Murphy of the Farrah Fawcett team in the male division; Procaccio, Thomas and Beth Adkins of the University of Florida in the female division; and Tommy Owens, Tommy Barnes, and Jimmy Haddle of the Atlanta Track Club in the Masters division.

Hot Feet, Cool Temperatures

By Paul Marks
 Staff Writer

The big story behind Kevin Moats' record breaking time in this year's Macon Labor Day Road was the unseasonably cool weather.

Moats won the race in a time of 29:46 which was almost 14 seconds lower than the course record set last year by Herb Wills of Tallahassee.

The Labor Day Road Race is a race which normally has the ambulance drivers waiting at attention. Because of the normal conditions of 70 to 75 degree temperatures and near 100 percent humidity of the first five races, several cases of heat exhaustion have occurred at each race in the past.

The thermometer dipped all the way down to 63 degrees Monday morning and humidity was a relatively out-of-sight 82 percent.

THE HEAT THIS year was provided by the runners' assault on the clock. Runners were not only surviving the course this year, they were smoking it.

The most common chorus heard among the throng of approximately 1300 runners milling around the finish area at Central City Park was 'Yeah, I got a p.r. (personal record) today.'

Winner Moats of Kennesaw, Ga., turned in a personal best time almost 40 seconds faster than his previous best time. He was certain the cool temperatures were a boost for him Monday.

"People in the South seem to run a little better in the cool weather races of March, April and the late fall months," Moats said. "I know it was a little cooler than everyone expected it to be today and consequently you had the fast times."

Macon runner Adam Pinkston, the first city finisher in a time of 31:33 and an eighth place overall finish agreed (See COOL, Page 11A) with Moats.

"The cooler temperatures had a lot to do with it," Pinkston said. "This was my best time ever, and the first time I had ever broken 32 minutes."

The ambulances were empty this year. No cases of heat exhaustion caused any runners to make the trip to the hospital for observation.

The runners were back at the finish area looking at the first changes of fall.
